

Military Competency to Flight Instructor I

New change to 14 CFR Part 61:

Current and former military IPs and Evaluators can now get their Flight Instructor certificate (CFI/CFII/MEI) by military competency... that's right, just take one written test, turn it in, and you're done... no checkrides at all!

If you don't have a Flight Instructor certificate, just study our software for the new Military Competency Instructor (MCI) test, turn it in to the FAA with documents showing that you were a military IP or Evaluator, and you'll receive a Flight Instructor certificate with the appropriate ratings (fixed-wing, rotary, powered-lift, glider, and instrument). If you already have a Flight Instructor certificate, you can add ratings to it from your military background without even taking the MCI test.

We are the only FAA test prep company that guarantees...

- ... you will not see any questions on your FAA Written Exam that were not in our prep, or your money back!
- ... 24 hour-a-day personal, U.S.-based telephone technical support!

Unlike other companies, with us you will only study the questions that can show up on the test...

- ... Why study over 1000 questions for the MCI test when less than half that many are used on the test?
- ... Why study some other company's software containing questions over 8 years old and which comes with no guarantees at all?

Features: The software database is kept up-to-date 24-hours a day with the rapid pace of FAA changes by our support team, so it doesn't get old while you're studying. You don't need an internet connection to study. You can study as many hours as you want until you take the test (limited to one year). Our study strategy & software features guarantee you the least study time and the best possible score (our subscribers score 10% above the national averages).
